- 12 February. Only one Kazakh bank, Kazinkombank, had to abstain from selling retail deposits as a result of AFN's new regulation forbidding the sale of retail deposits in the absence of a major stakeholder (holding more than 10% of the capital) in the bank. Mr. Marchenko is also against the state control of banks' margins on loans, except for loans included under special state programmes.

He also promised to avoid significant fluctuations of the exchange rate. He said that there were several waves of rumors about a possible devaluation of Kazakh Tenge. One rumour was in January-February 2009, when the population was converting KZT deposits into FX and the volume of sold FX cash peaked. The other wave of rumors came in July 2009.

Mr. Marchenko also said that the National Bank will not reconsider its refinancing rate for a while.

According to National Bank, the total foreign debt of Kazakh banks decreased by US$ 8.2 during 2009 to US$ 28.5 billion. It reached US$ 46 billion at its peak. The share of respondents thinking that there is a growth in demand for financing from the corporate sector increased from 18% in 3Q09 to 30% in 4Q09. The share of respondents thinking that there is an increase for demand for mortgages and consumer loans decreased from 26% and 37% in 3Q09 to 17% and 19% respectively.

According to the banks, the revival of lending depends on the stability of the macroeconomic situation in Kazakhstan, further development of asset quality dynamics, and the actions of Financial Regulators as well as other factors.
